TERRIBLE CALAMITY IN A NOVA SCOTIA COAL MINE-FIFTI TO ONE HUNDRED MINERS KILLED BY AN EXPLOSION OF FIRE DAMP.

A telegram from Westville, N. S., dated May 4 gives the following additional details of the ster : From 10 o'clock last night until day light this morning, the fire at the Dru olliery raged with intense fury, gathering rolume and violence each moment. The sky in the vicinity of the calamity was illuminated with flames issuing from the air shaft, to the neight of nearly 100 feet. All through the night there were explosions at intervals. They were preceded by a rumbling noise, resembling thunder. The weary watchers who remain around the pit's mouth and the air shaft, and labored to subdue the flames, were obliged to seck shelter in the adjoining wood, as stones, ebris, etc., thrown from the pit's mouth at each explosion were being scattered arou all directions, and threatened instant destruction or injury to every one within reach.

About 2 o'clock this afternoon these ex plosions were followed by one which for terrific ce and destructive force dwarfed all the est. All the wooden works in and about the ain alope were instantly destroyed; stones ood and burning embers were driven high nto the air; the smoke, fiame and horrible coises accompanying the explosion giving the The earth for miles around was shaken with the violence of the explosion.

The scenes in and around the villag addening. Westville and the village at the Drummond colliery are in mourning; the shops are closed, and men and women wander about in groups, their saddened counter ug the great grief that has befalle hem. No pen can correctly picture the ha owing scenes when the terrible truth was conveyed to the mourning wives, sisters, and friends of those who were so suddenly hurled nto eternity. The utmost excitement prevailed, and for ours it was impossible to ascertain who were and who were not in the mine. Women, many of whom had husbands, brothers, and son working in the colliery, made the air dismu

One of the rescuing party killed by the ex plosion on yesterday was driven into the air a listance of 100 feet, and fell into the wood near by, where his dead body was picked up.

The list of killed, as far as known, compris s 26 men leaving a wife and family, and 22 ingle men. The total number killed will probably reach 75. FARM AND HOME.

1. Only good farming pays. He who the sows or plants without reasonable assurance of good crops annually had etter earn wages of some capable neighbor than work for so poor a paymaster as he is certain to prove himself.

2. The good farmer is proved by the steady appreciation of his crops. Any one may reap an ample harvest from a fertile virgin soil; the good farmer alone grows good crops at first, and better and etter ever afterward.

3. It is far easier to maintain the productive capacity of a farm than to restore it. To exhaust its fecundity, and then attempt its restoration by buying costly commercial fertifizers, is wasteful and irrational.

4. The good farmer sells mainly such products as are least exhaustive. Neessity may constrain him for the first year or two to sell grain, or even hay but he will soon send off his surplus mainly in the form of cotton, or wool, or meat, or butter and cheese, or something else that returns to the soil nearly all that is taken from it. A bank account daily drawn upon while nothing is deposited to its credit must soon respond "No funds." So with a farm similarly

5. Rotation is at least negative fertiliration. It may not positively enrich farm : it will at least retard and postpone its impoverishment. He who grows wheat after wheat, corn after corn, for twenty years, will need to emigrate before the term is fulfilled. The same farm cannot support (nor endure) him longer than that. All our great wheatgrowing sections of fifty years ago are wheat-growing no longer, while England grows large crops thereof on the very ields that fed the armies of Saxon Harold and William the Conqueror. Rotation preserved these, as the lack of it ruined those. - Boston Journal of Chem-

When to Sell Grain.

A correspondent of the Evening Wis consin writes: I would say to you, the one great mistake of the farming comnunity is this: the practice of contracting debts to be paid in the fall of the year instead of having them come due in June or July, in order to have the benefit of the fall and spring markets. I find a great many of the farmers sell their last bushel of grain at one-half or two-thirds its value in order to pay their liabilities, and so lose the profits thereby damaging themselves and the surrounding community by draining the country of every dollar, leaving nothing to make improvements with. I have noticed that the middle-men are fully aware of your obligations, or, if not, the first thing you do is to inform them, by saving, "I must raise some money to pay debts; what can you give me i bushel for my grain?" That gives them to understand that you are obliged to sell, no matter what you get, and they take the advantage of you.

Sowing Plaster. A correspondent of the Western Farplaster is undoubtedly a machine made for that particular business, as it is heavy to carry and rather dirty to handle. In the absence of that, one I have practiced considerably is to put your plaster in a wagon near the hind end; then, with driver, a person can sow his plaster very evenly and comparatively with ease. Another way is to carry it in a basket and sow by stakes similar to sewing broadcast. As to the proper time to sow on wheat, I would state that if you seed with clover, immediately after seeding is the best time; if not seeded, I sow no plaster, as I have never received any benefit by putting it on wheat. The best time to sow plaster on clover is after it gets a good start, generally about May 1, but never before the grass starts, as I have noticed some farmers doing this spring.

How to Insert Screws in Plaster Walls. It often becomes desirable to insert screws in plaster walls, without attaching them to any woodwork; but when we turn them in the plaster gives way and our effort is vain. And yet a screw may be inserted in plaster so as to hold light pictures, etc., very firmly. The best plan is to enlarge the hole to about twice the the diameter of the screw, fill it with plaster of paris, such as is used for fastening the tops of lamps, etc., and pounds of beef, 199,651,660 pounds of bed the screw in the soft plaster. When the plaster has set the screw will be held very strongly.

A Dry Cellar. A correspondent of the American Agriculturist tells how to make a dry cellar out of a wet one. He says : "Dig out the bottom of the cellar, commencing at the sides two inches below the walls, increasing the depth to the center, so it shall have the form of an inverted arch; then the earth should be pounded firmly and well cemented, allowing the ement to go under an inch or so, and up the sides for two feet. Then the bottom should be filled up level with sand and paved. If this is all properly done the cellar will be dry permanently.

Cut-Worms and Corn.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman gives this treatment of corn as a sure way to keep it from the attacks of cut-worms: Soak the corn in water till it swells as large as the kernels will ordinarily expand, then add a pound and a half of copperas dissolved in warm water, and allow it to soak one day, stirring it several times. Afterwards sprinkle enough land plaster over it to prevent the grains from sticking to-

A WATER TELEGRAPH.

A French engineer and inventor named Tommasi. has recently perfected an invention for transmitting mes under water which is attracting cons able attention and comment. It consists of a simple tube of copper, containing what may be termed a thread or rod of water, which is said to transmit effectually and instantaneously every impulse communicated to it by pistons; and not only that, but the impulse can travel both ways at once without extinguishing each other. The inventor claims that with this apparatus he can send 600 signals per minute through a distance of 2,400 miles; that it permits simultane ous exchange of correspondence through the same tube; that it can be adapted to any recording instrument whatever and that it is durable and economical.
